

COTTON IRRIGATION EFFICIENCY

Michele L. Reba

USDA-ARS

State University, AR

Tina G. Teague

Arkansas State University-University of Arkansas Agricultural Experiment Station

State University, AR

Austin L. Lewis

Arkansas State University

State University, AR

Earl D. Vories

Missouri Agricultural Experiment Station Delta Research Center

Portageville, MO

Abstract

Soil moisture in different soils is an important factor in plant water use and irrigation scheduling. Results of experiment on soil moisture, plant water use, and water infiltration in different Arkansas soils in identical weather conditions will be presented in the poster. Gravimetric method and soil moisture sensors have been used to monitor soil moisture during the vegetation period of the plants.